Webinar – November 24, 2020

Since the Barcelona Process was launched, large-scale international projects as well as a great number of local and regional initiatives have been contributing to create a consolidated network of cooperation, which has directly impacted the lives of millions of citizens. In this context, multi-level governance has been foreseen a key aspect for the successful impact of cooperation in the Mediterranean Region.

How does multi-level governance contribute to shape effective cooperation experiences in the Mediterranean Region? What would an overview of relevant Euro-Mediterranean governance instruments be like in order to improve the participation of territorial stakeholders in the definition and implementation of the policies? Which are the lessons learned and how can we reinforce the impact of governance instruments to strengthen multi-level governance in order to address the common challenges of the Mediterranean Region? How should territorial cooperation and related programmes be addressed in terms of Euro-Mediterranean cooperation? Assuming that territories, regions and cities are the places where main challenges must be faced, what instruments would be the best for helping regional and local politicians to address them?

The Med Cooperation Alliance, as a unique network of networks facilitating transnational multi-level governance in the Mediterranean proposes a specific high-level on-line event aiming at promoting, exchanging and proposing successful governance instruments as key assets for true cooperation impacts for the future of the Mediterranean.

Objectives of the event:

- Contribute and impact the current debates on how to recover from the COVID-19 Crisis in the Med basin, with a concrete focus on mid-term and long-term issues, and with the opportunity offered by the 25 years of the Barcelona Process.
- Orientate European and Mediterranean territorial cooperation programmes, mainly Interreg Med and Next Med, towards the better integration of solutions at territorial levels.
- Associate key actors to strengthen the Mediterranean Cooperation Alliance network & enhance complementarities such as with the ARLEM.
- Present the added value of the Mediterranean Cooperation Alliance regarding macro-regionalization processes in the Mediterranean.
